CEFR Level B2

At the B2 level there is a focus on effective argument. Students are able to account for and sustain their opinions in discussion by providing relevant explanations, arguments and comments. They can explain a viewpoint on a topical issue giving the advantages and disadvantages of various options and can develop an argument giving reasons in support of or against a particular point of view. They can take an active part in informal discussion in familiar contexts, commenting, putting their point of view clearly, evaluating alternative proposals and making and responding to hypotheses. They are able to hold their own effectively in social discourse and understand in detail what is said to them in the standard spoken language even in a noisy environment. They can initiate discourse, take their turn when appropriate and end a conversation when they need to, though they may not always do this elegantly. They can interact with a degree of fluency and spontaneity that makes regular interaction with native speakers quite possible without imposing strain on either party. There is a new degree of language awareness. They are able to correct mistakes if they have led to misunderstandings, can make a note of “favourite mistakes” and consciously monitor speech for it/Them and generally they can correct slips and errors if they become conscious of them.

Global
At the B2 level, students should be able to understand the main ideas of complex texts on both concrete and abstract topics, including technical discussions in their field of specialisation. They can interact with a degree of fluency and spontaneity that makes regular interaction with native speakers quite possible without strain for either party. They can produce clear, detailed text on a wide range of subjects and explain a viewpoint on a topical issue giving the advantages and disadvantages of various options.

Listening
Students can understand standard speech spoken at a normal rate and follow even complex lines of argument provided the topic is reasonably familiar. They can understand the essentials of lectures and most TV news and current affairs programmes and can understand the majority of films in standard dialect.

Reading
At this level, students can understand articles and reports concerned with contemporary problems in which the writers adopt particular stances or viewpoints. They can understand contemporary literary prose and can adapt style and speed of reading to different texts and purposes, using appropriate reference-sources selectively.

Spoken interaction
Students can interact with a degree of fluency and spontaneity that makes regular interaction with native speakers quite possible. They are able to take an active part in discussion in familiar contexts and can account for and sustain views clearly by providing relevant explanations and arguments.
Spoken production
They can present clear, detailed descriptions on a wide range of subjects related to their field of interest, expanding and supporting ideas with subsidiary points and relevant examples. They can explain a viewpoint on a topical issue giving the advantages and disadvantages of various options.

Writing
Students are able to write clear, detailed text on a wide range of subjects related to their interests. They can write an essay or report, passing on information or giving reasons in support of or against a particular point of view. They can write letters highlighting the personal significance of events and experiences.

Listening Proficiency scales
Students at the B2 level of proficiency can understand in detail what is said to them in the standard spoken language and can do this even when there is some noise in the background. They can understand standard spoken language, live or broadcast, on both familiar and unfamiliar topics normally encountered in personal, academic or vocational life. Only extreme background noise, unclear structure and/or idiomatic usage cause some problems. They can understand the main ideas of complex speech on both concrete and abstract topics delivered in a standard language including technical discussions in their field of specialisation. They can follow extended speech and complex lines of argument provided the topic is reasonably familiar, and the direction of the talk is clearly stated by the speaker. They can follow the essentials of lectures, talks and reports and other forms of presentation which use complex ideas and language and can understand announcements and messages on concrete and abstract topics spoken in standard language at normal speed. They can understand most radio documentaries and most other recorded or broadcast audio material delivered in standard language and can identify the speaker’s mood, tone, etc. They can understand most TV news and current affairs programmes such as documentaries, live interviews, talk shows, plays and the majority of films in standard language. They can follow a lecture or talk within their own field, provided the presentation is clear.

Reading Proficiency scales
Students at the B2 level of proficiency can read correspondence relating to their fields of interest and easily understand the essential meaning. They can understand specialised articles outside their field, provided that they can use a dictionary to confirm terminology. They can read many kinds of texts quite easily at different speeds and in different ways according to their purpose in reading and the type of text. They have a broad reading vocabulary, but sometimes experience difficulty with less common words and phrases. They can quickly identify the content and relevance of news items, articles and reports on a wide range of professional topics, deciding whether closer study is worthwhile. They can understand articles and reports concerned with contemporary problems in which the writers adopt particular stances or viewpoints.
Speaking Proficiency scales

Students at this level can produce stretches of language with a fairly even tempo; although they can be hesitant as they search for patterns and expressions, there are few noticeably long pauses. They can interact with a degree of fluency and spontaneity that makes regular interaction with native speakers quite possible without imposing strain on either party. They are able to express themselves with relative ease. Despite some problems with formulation resulting in pauses and ‘cul-de-sacs’, they are able to keep going effectively without help. Students at this level have a sufficient range of language to be able to give clear descriptions, express viewpoints and develop arguments without much conspicuous searching for words, using some complex sentence forms to do so. They have a sufficient range of language to describe unpredictable situations, explain the main points in an idea or problem with reasonable precision and express thoughts on abstract or cultural topics such as music and films. They have a good range of vocabulary for matters connected to their field and most general topics and can vary formulation to avoid frequent repetition, but lexical gaps can still cause hesitation and circumlocution. Lexical accuracy is generally high, though some confusion and incorrect word choice does occur without hindering communication. They show a relatively high degree of grammatical control and do not make mistakes which lead to misunderstanding. They communicate with reasonable accuracy in familiar contexts, generally with good control though with noticeable mother-tongue influence. Errors occur, but it is clear what they are trying to express. They have acquired a clear, natural, pronunciation and intonation and can with some effort keep up with and contribute to group discussions even when speech is fast and colloquial. They can sustain relationships with native speakers without unintentionally amusing or irritating them or requiring them to behave other than they would with a native speaker. They can express themselves appropriately in situations and avoid crass errors of formulation. They can perform and respond to a wide range of language functions, using their most common exponents in a neutral register. They are able to adjust to the changes of direction, style and emphasis normally found in conversation and can vary formulation of what they want to say. They can adapt their expressions to deal with less routine, even difficult, situations and can initiate discourse, take their turn when appropriate and end conversation when they need to, though they may not always do this elegantly. They can use stock phrases (e.g. ‘That’s a difficult question to answer’) to gain time and keep the turn whilst formulating what to say. They are able to intervene in a discussion on a familiar topic, using a suitable phrase to get the floor. They can develop a clear description or narrative, expanding and supporting their main points with relevant supporting detail and examples and can use a limited number of cohesive devices to link their utterances into clear, coherent discourse, though there may be some ‘jumpiness’ in a long contribution.

Writing Proficiency scales

Students at the B2 level of proficiency can synthesise information and arguments from a number of sources. They can construct a chain of reasoned argument and can speculate about causes, consequences and hypothetical situations.

Learner Outcomes: Examples

Functions / notions

Describing experiences
I was walking the dog in the park when I heard a loud crash. I looked in the direction of the noise and saw that a huge tree had fallen down. There were some people screaming and calling for help and some children were trapped underneath one of the fallen branches.

Describing feelings and emotions
He was furious when he saw that his new bicycle had been damaged. She screamed in anger at how stupid her brother had been. Heather was delighted with her shot and her face glowed with pride. Why should we suffer just because our neighbours like loud parties? I don’t think it’s right for passengers to put their feet on the seats.

Describing hopes and plans
I am having a meeting with my boss on Friday. How are you going to get to France? How long are you going to Jamaica for? I’d love to see the photos when you get back. I’ll call you soon. I am going to go around the world when I’ve saved enough money. I hope to get a job in Australia next year. I’ve always wanted to visit the Taj Mahal.

Giving precise information
I’ll meet you at 2pm in the children’s section of Waterstones in Oxford Street. In my job I mainly have to deal with clients, particularly arranging and following up on orders. He was born in a little village in the North East of Estonia on the 22\textsuperscript{nd} of October, 1928. My degree was in economics, specialising in finance. You need to place the pizza dough in a warm bowl, cover it with a cloth or place it somewhere warm, leave it to rise for 30 minutes or until it doubles in size.

Expressing abstract ideas
Corruption is widespread in that part of the world. There is little respect for human rights during war time. Education is the way out of poverty for many young people.

Expressing certainty, probability, doubt
I’m absolutely certain it’s going to rain. It’s impossible to get him out of bed before 10 o’clock. He’s probably gone to the library. We’re definitely not going to Spain this year. Are you sure we’ll arrive in time?
Generalising and qualifying
On the whole I think it is a good idea.
Generally speaking, the teachers are very helpful.
More often than not he shops in the High Street.
Taking into consideration the cost of travel, you might not want to buy a flat so far away.
We’ll stay for a week or two, depending on the cost.
Provided that there is no rain, the concert will go ahead as planned.

Synthesizing, evaluating, glossing information
To sum up, the government will need to cut spending for the next five years.
All in all, it was a miserable performance.
To be fair, it was his own fault for parking where he shouldn’t have.
In short, they were better than us at promoting their ideas.

Speculating
I wonder if John will be going to the party.
If she got the nomination, she could probably win if she gathered enough support.
What do you think would happen if they did discover oil there?
What if Teresa hadn’t turned up?

Expressing opinions
If I were you, I’d just say no.
From her point of view, we have to do this as soon as possible.
The way I see it is that you’ll have to study very hard.
I feel we should do it.
I really don’t think it’s a good idea.

Expressing agreement/disagreement
That’s just what I was thinking.
You know, that’s exactly what I think.
I totally agree.
That’s a good point.
No I’m afraid I can’t agree with you there.
You can’t be serious!
Don’t be silly!
That’s ridiculous.

Expressing reaction, e.g. indifference
Why ask me?
Thank goodness
Fantastic idea!
Brilliant!
Great!
Whatever.
That’s ridiculous!
How’s that possible?
Really?
No way! I don’t believe it.
Critiquing and reviewing
I think that ‘Treasure Island’ is still popular with children even though the language is rather dated. In spite of its popularity I feel that ‘The Beach’ is a very overrated book which appeals mainly to gap-year students. The film was a bit disappointing, really. The best part was when ..... It was really good when ....

Developing an argument
To begin with it’s a bigger problem than you think. As far as I am concerned this has nothing to do with the issue. The way I see it, the family is more important. That’s the reason I don’t want to work there anymore.

In academic discourse style:
One reason why... Another argument for/against . . . is . . . X maintains that . . . Y states that . . . It could be argued/asserted that . . . In conclusion . . .

Discourse Functions
Checking understanding
From speaker’s point of view
Are you following me? Let me know if you have any questions? Does that make sense?
From listener’s point of view
If I understood/understand you correctly, there are no planes at all on Saturday. Do you mean I can’t talk to the boss right now? Are you trying to say you don’t want to go out with me anymore? Let me see whether I’ve understood you correctly. So what you’re really saying is . . . Am I right in assuming . . .

Managing interaction (interrupting, changing topic, resuming or continuing)
Interrupting
Actually, . . . I’m sorry but . . . Just a minute! Yes, I know, but . . . ! Hang on! Hold on!

Changing the topic
Oh, by the way . . . That reminds me . . . This has nothing to do with what we are talking about but . . . On another subject..
Talking about holidays, did you know that I’m off to Florida next week?
Before I forget . . .

Resuming
Anyway, I was telling you about John’s party . . .
To get back to what I was saying . . .

Taking the initiative in interaction

Control and delegation at start
Andre, would you like begin?
Pilar, would you like to kick off?
Shall we begin?
During the meeting Jenny, can you tell us how the Human Resources reorganisation is coming along?
How does that affect your department, Rosa?
Let’s move on, shall we?

Keeping interaction participants on topic
We don’t have time to go into that matter right now.
Let’s get back to the issue under discussion, shall we?
That’s another topic, really.
Can we keep to the point, please.
Let’s not get distracted.

Taking initiative in non-control situation
I’d like to say a few words here.
Yes, I think I can contribute to this point.
My expertise in this area might help to clarify the situation.
Perhaps, I could say something here.

Encouraging and inviting another speaker to continue, come in.
Carry on.
Go on.
Really?
Mmm...mmm....
Don’t stop.
Tell me more...
What makes you say that?
What makes you think that?
I’m listening.

Invitation in one-to-one interaction
Don’t you agree?
Is that okay with you?
How about you?
What do you reckon/think?

Invitation in group interaction
What do you think, Mario?
Let’s hear what Gabriella has to say.
James might have something to say on this.
Fiona knows a lot about this.
Hey, you did something like that, didn’t you?
Interacting informally, reacting, expressing interest, sympathy, surprise
Wow, that’s fantastic.
Really? Tell me more.
Tell me all about it.
I don’t believe it!
Oh wow!
Oh you poor thing.
That’s awful. What a shame!
